

We must listen to our elders.

Our elders are our teachers, grandparents, our mother and father. Aunts and uncles are our elders too. Our elder brother and sister are elders too!

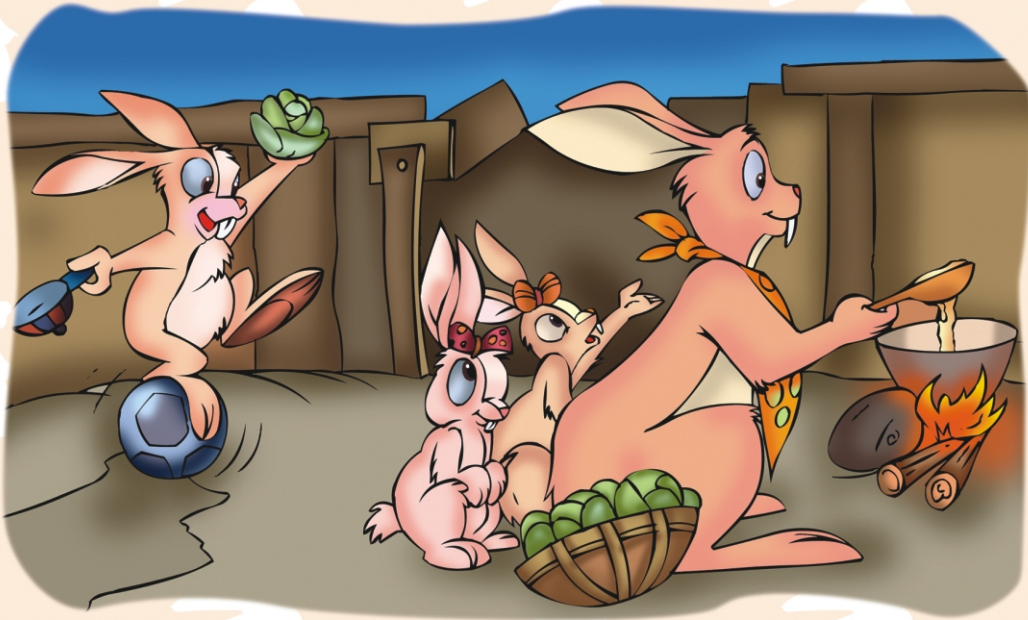

I Must Listen To My Elders

I listen to my father,
I listen to my mother,
I must listen to them.

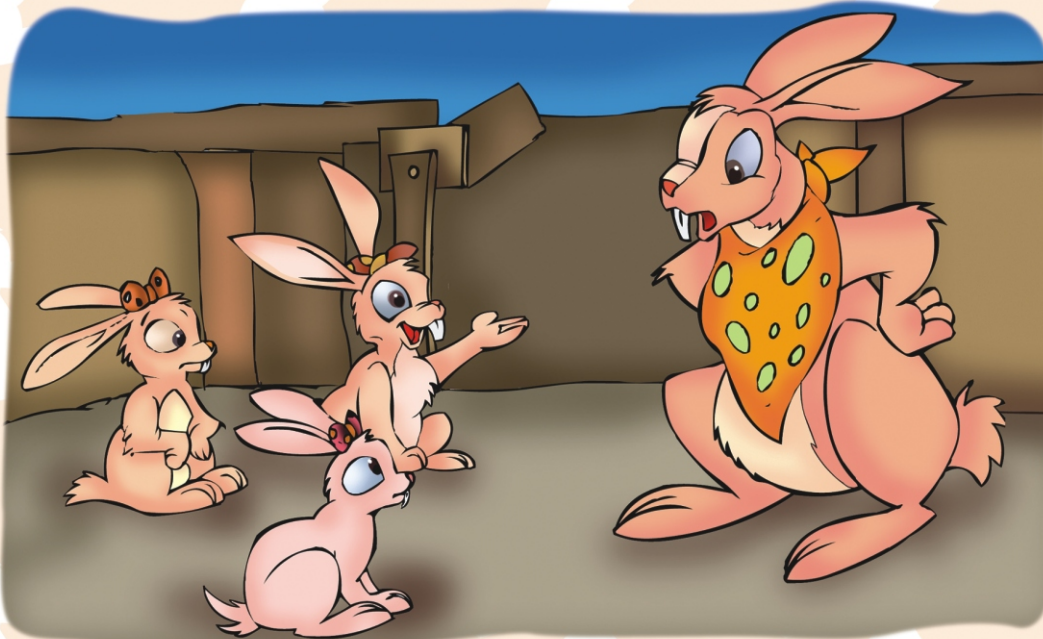

I must obey them.
They care for me,
They help me,
They do so much for me.
They try to protect me.
They love me so,
I must obey them.

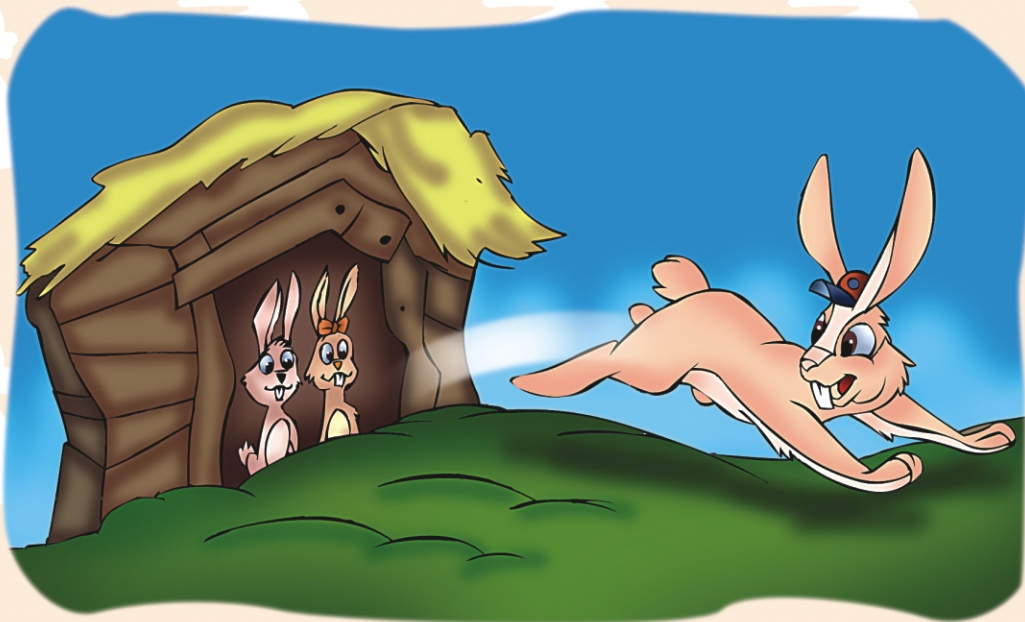

Bunny In Trouble

Near a farm, lived mother rabbit with her family. She had two little girls and a little boy, called Dolu. Dolu was a very naughty rabbit.

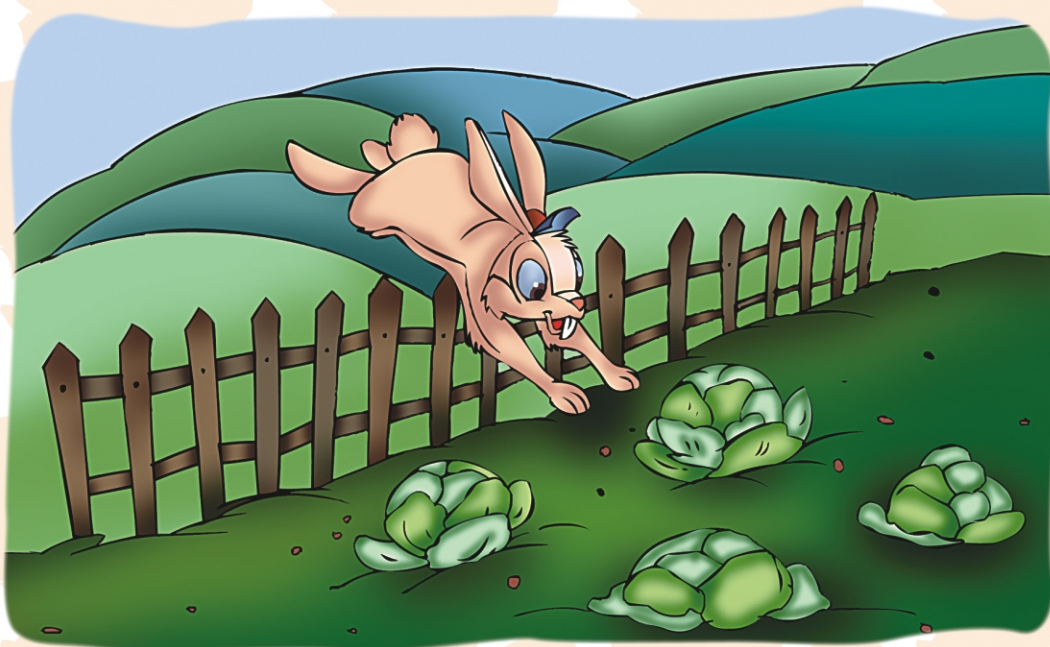

One day, mother rabbit had to go out to get food. She called her family and told them, "Stay at home. It is not safe outside. If you go outside, the farmer will catch you".

The little girls stayed at home, but Dolu, the naughty rabbit, went outside. He hopped to the farmer's gate.

Inside the gate he saw some cabbages. Dolu loved cabbages. He wanted to eat them. Dolu hopped over the gate.

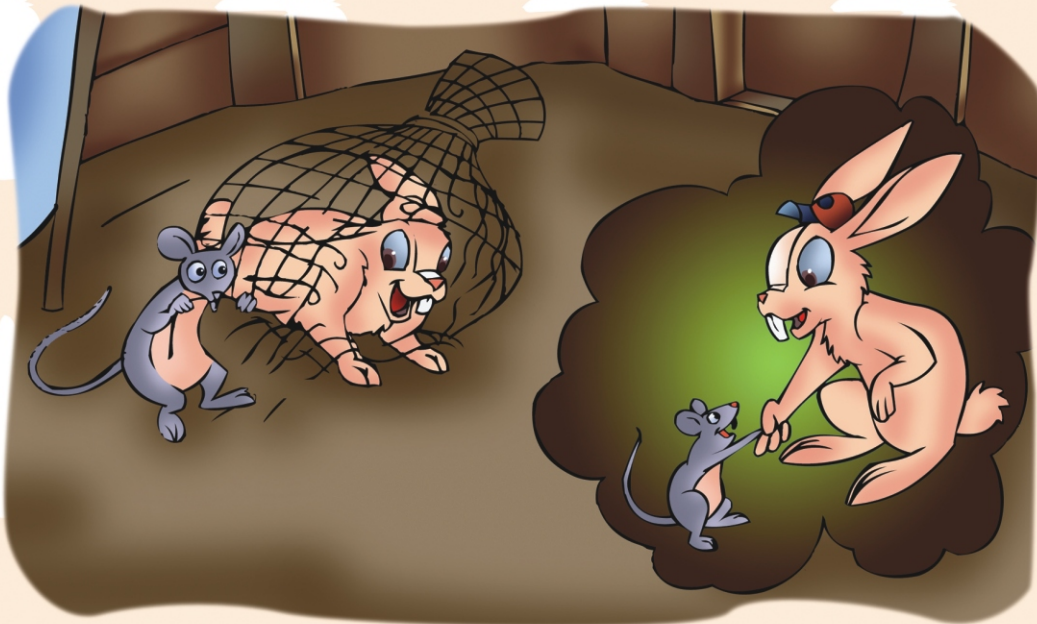

Just then, the farmer saw him.

The little rabbit hopped away and the farmer ran after him. Fast hopped the rabbit and faster ran the farmer.

Then the farmer threw a net on Dolu and caught him. Poor Dolu! He wished he had listened to his mother.

The farmer went inside to get a basket. Just then, Hira mouse saw Dolu. She bit the net and Dolu was free.

Dolu hopped home as fast as he could.

Now Dolu always listens to his mother.
